I. PURPOSE AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

Unilateral sanctions have been imposed by the U.S. on a number of other countries to bar commercial transactions for the export of agricultural commodities. It is difficult to find evidence that such unilateral sanctions result in improved behavior by the targeted regimes. However, by denying U.S. farmers and agricultural businesses market access, domestic agriculture is clearly harmed. Approximately three out of every ten acres of domestic agricultural production are sold outside of the U.S. and export earnings are an increasing proportion of net farm income. Ninety-five percent of the world's consumers of food, feedstuffs, and fibers live outside of the U.S. As countries improve economically and democratically, the global demand for better diets and increased food imports is expected to increase as well. The prosperity of U.S. agriculture is highly dependent on access, as unfettered as possible, to world markets. Furthermore, experience has shown that in instances when the U.S. has imposed unilateral sanctions, suppliers in competitor nations move quickly to fill the void. In the short term, significant sales are lost; in the longer term, the U.S.'s reputation as a reliable supplier is compromised and the opportunity to regain lost market access once sanctions are lifted is endangered. Income and jobs in the U.S. farm economy have been lost as a result of unilateral sanctions. Moreover, the evidence is clear that unilateral sanctions on food serve to punish innocent victims in the sanctioned countries rather than the offending leadership. Under this legislation, commercial agricultural sales are exempted from unilateral sanctions unless the President decides national security interests dictate their inclusion. Should that decision be made, the President must send a report to Congress detailing the reason for the sanction and for the inclusion of agricultural commodities in particular. Farm exports may then be included in the sanction unless Congress passes a joint resolution disapproving the inclusion subject to a presidential veto. In addition, this legislation contains criteria intended to guide future bilateral and multilateral negotiations. These guidelines are intended to boost U.S. agricultural exports and increase market access for U.S. farmers through negotiations.

II. BACKGROUND AND SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

BACKGROUND

For foreign policy reasons, the U.S. imposes economic sanctions on foreign countries barring commercial transactions for the export of agricultural commodities. As a unilateral act, this policy is seldom very effective and causes both short and long-term damage to U.S. farmers and their ability to export their product abroad. Ninety-five percent of the world's consumers of agricultural commodities live outside of the United States. As countries improve economically and democratically, global demand for U.S. farm exports will increase. Given global and domestic market realities, the ability of U.S. farmers to access foreign markets is more vital than ever. This legislation exempts commercial sales of agricultural commodities from unilateral economic sanctions except in limited circumstances under special procedures. In addition, the legislation offers guidelines to increase U.S. agricultural exports and increase market access through trade negotiations.

SUMMARY

1. Agricultural commodities, livestock, and products exempt from unilateral agricultural sanctions

The bill exempts commercial sales of agricultural commodities, livestock, and products thereof from unilateral economic sanctions. The exemption covers only commercial transactions and does not apply to government food aid, to government financed export sales or to government export programs such as PL480, section 416, direct credits, credit guarantees, supplier credits, facility credits, Export Enhancement Program, Market Access Program, foreign market development or barter programs. Items such as fertilizers, pesticides, and sprayers are not exempted. The President may include agricultural products in a sanction if the national interest dictates their inclusion. However, the President is then required to send to Congress a report explaining the national interest rationale, and a cost-benefit assessment of immediate and long-term ramifications of the inclusion. This reporting requirement applies to all future and current unilateral sanctions. Congress can override the President's decision by joint resolution.

2. Objectives for agricultural negotiations

This legislation contains the sense of Congress that the principal agricultural trade negotiating objectives for future multilateral and bilateral trade negotiations should be to achieve more open and fair conditions of trade and to boost U.S. agricultural exports by: developing, strengthening, and clarifying existing trade rules; eliminating barriers to trade; developing, strengthening, and clarifying rules that address unfair market access barriers; eliminating non-tariff trade barriers for meeting the food needs of an increasing world population through new technologies; and ensuring that foreign market access to U.S. agricultural commodities produced using various agricultural practices is not denied for reasons inconsistent with the rules of the World Trade Organization.

3. Sale or barter of food assistance

This bill contains a sense of Congress that the monetization of donated agricultural commodities should occur only in the recipient country or countries adjacent to the recipient countries unless the transaction is not practicable in the country or adjacent countries. Further, the transaction should not disrupt commercial markets for the agricultural commodity involved.

4. Relief from unfair trade practices affecting U.S. agricultural commodities

This legislation states that it is the sense of Congress that the Secretary of Agriculture should aggressively use the authorities granted under section 302 of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978. That statute provides the Secretary with the authority to use programs of the Department of Agriculture for an agricultural commodity regarding that commodity when there is undue delay in a dispute resolution proceeding of an international trade agreement.

5. Micronutrient Fortification Pilot Program

The authority to conduct a pilot program, which has now been completed, is repealed.

6. Technical corrections

Several technical corrections are made to the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996, the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade Act of 1990, and the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978.

III. LEGISLATIVE HISTORY AND COMMITTEE VOTES

The Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, on May, 11, 1999, held a hearing on agricultural sanctions reform and on S. 566 in particular.

The first panel to testify consisted of Stuart Eizenstat, Under Secretary of State for Economic, Business and Agricultural Affairs, and August Schumacher, Under Secretary of Agriculture for Farm and Foreign Agricultural Services. Mr. Eizenstat testified on a sanctions policy change announced by the Administration in the weeks prior to the hearing. The new policy would exempt commercial sales of food, medicine and medical supplies from unilateral economic sanctions on a case-by-case basis and through a licensing process. Mr. Eizenstat testified that the regulations necessary to implement the policy had not yet been developed, but were the subject of ongoing discussion among various federal agencies. Mr. Eizenstat testified that the Administration would examine S. 566 and felt the principles embodied in it were very similar to the Administration's position on the issue. Mr. Eizenstat also discussed S. 757, a broader sanctions reform bill, but expressed the Administration's inability to support the legislation based on certain differences regarding Presidential waiver authority. Mr. Eizenstat concluded by reiterating the Administration's support for sanctions reform and expressed a hope that common ground would be found between the Administration and Senator Lugar both on agricultural sanctions reform and on general sanctions reform.

Mr. Schumacher testified next that the Administration was in the process of finalizing the proposed policy change announced by the Administration. He testified that U.S. sanctions policies need to be reevaluated due to their often limited efficacy and their tendency to harm domestic agricultural interests. Mr. Schumacher reiterated the Administration's commitment to agricultural sanctions reform and stated that such a policy change is very timely, given low prices and soft global demand.

The second panel consisted of Charles J. O'Mara and Paul Drazek. Each had served as Special Counsel for Trade to the Secretary of Agriculture during the Clinton Administration.

Mr. O'Mara testified that unilateral economic sanctions are seldom successful in achieving U.S. foreign policy objectives and often have negative ramifications for U.S. agriculture which outweigh any positive effects. Mr. O'Mara expressed his support of S. 566 and also discussed the 1999 WTO negotiations scheduled to begin in Seattle, stating that the negotiations present an excellent opportunity to achieve improvements in foreign market access.

Mr. Drazek echoed Mr. O'Mara in his support of S. 566. Mr. Drazek noted that the tendency for the U.S. to impose agricultural sanctions on other countries undermines the U.S.'s reputation as a reliable supplier and encourages other countries not to be too reliant on the U.S. for food. Mr. Drazek stated that along with "fast-track" trade negotiating authority, legislation exempting agriculture from sanctions is the most important step the U.S. can take to ensure a successful outcome of the 1999 WTO negotiations. Mr.

Drazek questioned whether the “case-by-case” approach announced by the Administration was workable in the dynamic context of international commodity trading.

The third panel consisted of producer groups with experience in sanctions.

First to testify was Dean Kleckner, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation. Mr. Kleckner stated that the future of American agriculture is dependent on access to foreign markets. Mr. Kleckner commended the Administration for its policy change but stated that the new policy would not completely resolve the issue due to the licensing requirement. Furthermore, Mr. Kleckner testified, the problem of U.S. producers being viewed as unreliable suppliers would not be solved under the proposed policy change since a sale could be denied by the U.S. government. Mr. Kleckner expressed his and the American Farm Bureau Federation’s support of S. 566. He also discussed Cuba as an example of a long-running economic sanction which has failed to produce the intended effect and stated that leading agricultural economists have predicted up to $1 billion in sales should the ban be lifted on Cuba alone.

Next to testify was Gary Turner, a farmer from Burley, Idaho, on behalf of the National Farmers Union. Mr. Turner commended the effort to reform agricultural sanctions policy and stated that the U.S. sanctions policy which has been in effect for the past forty years has been detrimental to U.S. agriculture. Mr. Turner also endorsed S. 566.

James Matlack, Director of the Washington Office of American Friends Service Committee, testified next. Mr. Matlack spoke for his and for AFSC’s stance that sanctioning foreign countries is a complicated issue which necessitates careful cost-benefit analysis but is a practice far more preferable than use of force. He testified that sanctions need to be evaluated on an individual basis with the most careful consideration given to potential negative effects on the civilian populations living in the targeted country.

Next to testify was Richard Bell, President and Chief Executive Officer of Riceland Foods, Inc. Mr. Bell voiced his support for S. 566 and stated that no commodity has suffered more from the use of U.S. trade sanctions than rice. Mr. Bell noted that the leading U.S. rice export market has been sanctioned three separate times: Cuba in 1963, Iraq in 1990, and Iran in 1995. He reiterated the point made earlier from other witnesses that U.S. farmers have undoubtedly been hurt by U.S. sanctions policy whereas no tangible evidence exists that such sanctions have had any positive effect on the targeted regime.

Mike Yost, President of the American Soybean Association, testified next, stating that U.S. trade sanctions have been extremely damaging to U.S. agricultural interests. Mr. Yost expressed his support for S. 566 and also stated his opposition to imposing a licensing system for agricultural exports, as the Administration’s sanctions policy change does.

Last to testify was Jack Pettus, who spoke on behalf of Herb Karst, farmer and President of the National Barley Growers Association. Mr. Pettus agreed with the Chairman and previous witnesses that unilateral sanctions seldom achieve their stated objectives and often harm U.S. producers more than targeted regimes.

Mr. Pettus testified to the harm U.S. sanctions have had on domestic barley producers and stated that U.S. competitors are given the opportunity to fill the void when U.S. producers are barred from competing.

COMMITTEE VOTE

In compliance with paragraph 7 of rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate, the following statements are made concerning the votes of the Committee in its consideration of the Committee bill:

The Committee met in open session on Wednesday, May 26, 1999, to mark up this bill. An amendment in the nature of a substitute was agreed to by voice vote. The Committee accepted by recorded vote (17 yeas and 1 nay) an amendment by Senator Conrad which provides a framework through which Congress can override the President's decision to include agricultural commodities as part of a unilateral sanction. The rollcall vote was as follows:

YEAS	NAYS
Mr. Lugar	Mr. Helms
Mr. Cochran
Mr. McConnell
Mr. Coverdell
Mr. Roberts
Mr. Fitzgerald
Mr. Grassley
Mr. Craig
Mr. Santorum
Mr. Harkin
Mr. Leahy
Mr. Conrad
Mr. Daschle
Mr. Baucus
Mr. Kerrey
Mr. Johnson
Mrs. Lincoln

The Committee then ordered by voice vote that the bill be favorably reported.

IV. REGULATORY IMPACT STATEMENT

In compliance with paragraph 11(b) of rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate, the following evaluation is made concerning the regulatory impact of enacting this legislation:

The Committee has determined that this legislation will have no detrimental impact on the private sector as a result of new regulatory requirements. No new regulations are required to be instituted and existing regulations dictating whom producers may not transact commercial business with are lifted. The Committee expects a positive economic impact through lifting existing regulations, no adverse impact on the personal privacy of the individuals affected by the legislation, and no amount of additional paperwork resulting from regulations pursuant to the enactment of this bill.

V. BUDGETARY IMPACT OF THE BILL

In accordance with paragraph 11(a) of rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate, the following letter has been received from the Congressional Budget Office regarding the budgetary impact of the bill:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, June 17, 1999.

Hon. RICHARD LUGAR,
Chairman, Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for S. 566, the Agricultural Trade Freedom Act.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contacts are Craig Jagger, Dave Hull, and Joseph C. Whitehall.

Sincerely,

BARRY B. ANDERSON
(For Dan L. Crippen, Director).

Enclosure.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

S. 566—Agriculture Trade Freedom Act

S. 566 would exempt commercial sales of agricultural commodities from current and future unilateral economic sanctions imposed by the United States on a foreign country or entity, unless the Congress has declared a state of war, or the President determines that applying the sanctions to agricultural commodities would be in the national interest. However, the exemption from sanctions would not apply to agricultural commodities sold with certain federal subsidies or financing specified in the bill.

The President would be required to report to the Congress regarding his determination that applying the unilateral economic sanction to agricultural commodities is in the national interest, and thus the exemption from sanctions should not apply. The bill would establish procedures for the Congress to consider a joint resolution to disapprove the President's report, overriding his determination.

S. 566 could affect direct spending if unilateral agricultural sanctions are imposed less frequently or are of shorter duration than under current law. CBO has no basis for predicting the likelihood, duration, or market effects of future sanctions, or the likelihood of future Congressional action to approve or disapprove of such sanctions. But the bill would not affect most federally supported sales of agricultural commodities, and thus, CBO estimates that enacting S. 566 would probably have no significant budgetary impact.

Because the bill could affect direct spending, pay-as-you-go procedures would apply. S. 566 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act and would not affect the budgets of state, local, or tribal governments.

The CBO contacts for this estimate are Craig Jagger, Dave Hull, and Joseph C. Whitehill. This estimate was approved by Robert A. Sunshine, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

VI. CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW

In compliance with paragraph 12 of rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate, changes in existing law made in the bill, as reported, are shown as follows (existing law proposed to be omitted is enclosed in black brackets, new material is printed in italic, existing law in which no change is proposed is shown in roman):

AGRICULTURAL TRADE ACT OF 1978

* * * * *

[7 U.S.C. 5677]

SEC. 417. TRADE COMPENSATION AND ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (f), notwithstanding any other provision of law, if, after the date of enactment of this section, the President or any other member of the executive branch causes exports of an agricultural commodity from the United States to any country to be unilaterally suspended for reasons of national security or foreign policy, and if within 90 days after the date on which the suspension is imposed on United States exports no other country with an agricultural economic interest agrees to participate in the suspension, the Secretary shall carry out a trade compensation assistance program in accordance with this section (referred to in this section as a “program”).

(b) COMPENSATION OR PROVISION OF FUNDS.—Under a program, the Secretary shall, based on an evaluation by the Secretary of the method most likely to produce the greatest compensatory benefit for producers of the commodity involved in the suspension—

(1) compensate producers of the commodity by making payments available to producers, as provided by subsection (c)(1); or

(2) make available an amount of funds calculated under subsection (c)(2), to promote agricultural exports or provide agricultural commodities to developing countries under any authorities available to the Secretary.

(c) DETERMINATION OF AMOUNT OF COMPENSATION OR FUNDS.—

(1) COMPENSATION.—If the Secretary makes payments available to producers under subsection (b)(1), the amount of the payment shall be determined by the Secretary based on the Secretary’s estimate of the loss suffered by producers of the commodity involved due to any decrease in the price of the commodity as a result of the suspension.

(2) DETERMINATION OF AMOUNT OF FUNDS.—For each fiscal year of a program, the amount of funds made available under subsection (b)(2) shall be equal to 90 percent of the average annual value of United States agricultural exports to the country with respect to which exports are suspended during the most recent 3 years prior to the suspension for which data are available.

(d) DURATION OF PROGRAM.—For each suspension of exports for which a program is implemented under this section, funds shall be made available under subsection (b) for each fiscal year or part of a fiscal year for which the suspension is in effect, but not to exceed 3 fiscal years.

(e) COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION.—The Secretary shall use funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to carry out this section.

(f) EXCEPTION TO CARRYING OUT A PROGRAM.—This section shall not apply to any suspension of trade due to a war or armed hostility.

(g) PARTIAL YEAR EMBARGOES.—If the Secretary makes funds available under subsection (b)(2), regardless of whether an embargo is in effect for only part of a fiscal year, the full amount of funds as calculated under subsection (c)(2) shall be made available under a program for the fiscal year. If the Secretary determines that making the required amount of funds available in a partial fiscal year is impracticable, the Secretary may make all or part of the funds required to be made available in the following fiscal year (in addition to any funds otherwise required under a program to be made available in the following fiscal year).

(h) SHORT SUPPLY EMBARGOES.—If the President or any other member of the executive branch causes exports to be suspended based on a determination of short supply, the Secretary shall carry out section 1002 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 1310).

[7 U.S.C. 5622]

SEC. 1542. PROMOTION OF AGRICULTURAL EXPORTS TO EMERGING MARKETS.

(a) FUNDING.—The Commodity Credit Corporation shall make available for fiscal years 1996 through 2002 not less than $1,000,000,000 of direct credits or export credit guarantees for exports to emerging markets under section 201 or 202 of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 (7 U.S.C. 5621 and 5622), in addition to the amounts acquired or authorized under section 211 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 5641) for the program.

(b) FACILITIES AND SERVICES.—A portion of such export credit guarantees shall be made available for—

(1) the establishment or improvement of facilities, or

(2) the provision of services or United States products goods, in emerging markets by United States persons to improve handling, marketing, processing, storage, or distribution of imported agricultural commodities and products thereof if the Secretary of Agriculture determines that such guarantees will primarily promote the export of United States agricultural commodities (as defined in section 102(7) of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978). The Commodity Credit Corporation shall give priority under this subsection to—

(A) projects that encourage the privatization of the agricultural sector or that benefit private farms or cooperatives in emerging markets; and

(B) projects for which nongovernmental persons agree to assume a relatively larger share of the costs.

(d) E (Kika) DE LA GARZA AGRICULTURAL FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM.—The Secretary of Agriculture (hereafter in this section referred to as the “Secretary”) shall establish a program, to be known as the “E (Kika) de la Garza Agricultural Fellowship Program”, to develop agricultural markets in emerging markets and to promote cooperation and exchange of information between agricultural insti-
